Y. M. C. A. CONSTITUTION WILL BE REVISED

Committee is Appointed for That Purpose.

Board of Trustees Hold Meeting--No Very Important Business is Considered.

A meeting of the board of trustees of the Y. M. C. A. was held in the secretary's office at 8 o'clock last night. Those present were E. C. Smith, J. E. Waddell, F. E. Guthrie, A. H. Kling, W. J. Grills, W. C. Stafford, S. E. Barlow, C. L. Allen, John Clark, J. P. Lust, B. P. Sweeney and J. H. Oatey.

E. C. Smith, president of the board occupied the chair. Shortly after the meeting was called to order, a trustee suggested that the constitution of the Association be revised. The main reason for a revision he states is so that the fiscal year made be made to end on the first of May instead of the first of November when the annual report of the secretary of the local board will coincide with the report compiled with international committee at New York, also the report to the state committee at Columbus.

The present constitution of the Association was adopted fifteen years ago. As there has been a wonderful advancement in Y. M. C. A. work in city in that time the fifteen year old constitution of the Association is greatly behind the times and is but little better than none at all. Consequently a committee composed of Messrs. F. E. Guthrie, J. H. Clark and C. L. Allen was appointed and authorized to make such revisions as they see fit and report at the next meeting of the board.

After the revision has been made the constitution will be reprinted and bound in an up to date pamphlet and placed in the hands of the members of the Association.

A report from the financial department of the Association showed the finances to be in a most satisfactory condition.

C. D. & M. GETS BUSY

Work on the City Street Railway Extensions Begun.

The work of building the extension of the city street railway over George, Prospect, Silver and Lee streets was started this morning when the first rails were put down on George street. The work will be pushed as rapidly as possible and if no delays occur, the company officials expect to have all of the extensions in by fall.

Mr. Whysall wants to get the George street track in before the time comes for paving that thoroughfare.

Council Gets After Street Railway Co.

ANNUAL CITY TAX LEVY

Lowered One Tenth of a Mile From Last Year.

C. D. & M. Files Notice That at Last the City Railway Extensions are to be Built.

In making the annual city tax levy, Monday evening, the council went the board of education one better. The two bodies entered into an agreement several weeks ago, in which each arranged to cut down its levy 3-10 of a mill so as to keep the grand total down to 39 mills, the same as last year. The council, at its meeting, Monday evening, placed the city levy at 15.05 or 4.10 of a mill less than last year. The board of education has already adopted the levy for school purposes, cutting 3-10 of a mill from the amount which had been originally asked.

This additional cut of a tenth of a mill by the council will probably lower the grand total that amount, so that the levy on Marion property this year will be slightly less than last year. The council did away with the general fund, thus making the additional decrease of a tenth of a mill possible.

The levy was made after the members of the council had held a short caucus. A resolution was then adopted, dividing the total levy of 15.05 mills, as follows: for public health purposes, 15.100 of a mill; public safety, two mills; public service, 7 1-2 mills; library purposes, 40-100 of a mill; sinking fund, five mills.

The meeting Monday evening was unusually brief, being adjourned shortly before 10 o'clock. All members were present.

George H. Whysall, general manager of the C. D. & M. Electric Railway company, was present, and filed notice of the company's intention to build an extension of the city railway over George, Prospect, Silver and Lee streets. He will submit his bid on fares at the next meeting and construction work will be started within a few weeks.

Mr. Whysall announced, through Councilman Weber, that he will present the council with a big electric fan, to be attached to the ceiling of the council chamber and allow a little something besides hot air to circulate about the enclosure during the torrid summer months. The offer was accepted. Mr. Phillips voting against the acceptance.

A number of people living on Olney avenue and Blaine avenue, at the rear of whose lots is the alley running between these two thoroughfares from Center street to Church street, presented a remonstrance against having the alley improved with a pavement and a sanitary sewer. The petition for paving the alley was presented several weeks ago and was granted. Andrew McLaughlin and George Sprague were present and said that people whose lots have the alley at the rear are still paying assessments on either the Olney avenue or Blaine avenue pavings. The paving of the alley, they say, would benefit only three or four persons. The remonstrance was referred to the street and alley committee.

At the recommendation of the board of public service, the council adopted a resolution to lay stone sidewalks on the west side of Nile street from Silver street to Kenton avenue, the west side of Seffner avenue from Center street to the right of way of the Big Four railway, the south side of Garfield street from Lincoln avenue to Barabhart street, on the east side of Midam street from Garfield street to the right of way of the Big Four railway, on the west side of Summit street from Church street to the end of the plank walk, on the south side of Tully street from Prospect street to Mary street, on the east side of Cuyahoga street from Center to Hoyles street, on the south side of the Garden City Pike from Main street to Oak street.

Contractors who make excavations in the streets and lay down sidewalks are to properly safeguard pedestrians by placing lights at the sides of the excavations at night. This is what the members of the council agreed, Monday night, when Mr. Carpenter complained of the fact that a number of the contractors allow these holes to remain open without any danger signals. Dr. H. J. Lower, he said, recently, fell into one of these excavations while making a hurry run.

An ordinance was adopted accepting John A. Key's first addition to the city of Marion. The addition consists of about 10 lots located at the junction of Bellefontaine avenue and Pearl street.

A communication was received from Frank Darst, stating that he has paid Mrs. Phoebe Hendrickson $25 in settlement of her damage claim for having injured herself while a side-walk on Fairground street was being built. Mrs. Hendrickson sued the city for damages and East was given notice to settle. Under his bond as contractor for the sidewalk, he was liable for the claim.

Councilman Phillips started a discussion which resulted in the carrying of a motion to notify the street railway company to repair the "joints" in its tracks. Mr. Phillips said that the joints are out of order throughout the entire city and that the cars in a way that is most "unsatisfactory" to those on board.

"The cars go up and down and almost jar your liver out of place," was the way Mr. Phillips expressed it. City Clerk Fies was instructed to notify the company to repair the track joints. Mr. Fies said that if the work is done properly, it will be necessary for the company to lay a new road bed.

Mr. Carpenter wanted to know what had become of the proposition to furnish drainage facilities for the business blocks on West Center street between Olney and Blaine avenues. The cellars of these blocks are flooded whenever there is a heavy rain. The matter was referred to the sanitary sewer committee several weeks ago.

It was finally agreed that a sewer dug down Leader street would relieve the trouble. City Engineer Dwyer was instructed to make an estimate of the cost of such a drain. The cost will be placed on the general tax duplicate. The trouble at that point is more serious from the fact that Goose Creek, one of the oldest county ditches, is broken near the junction of Center and Leader streets, and the water which come down from this South End is not carried away properly. It is impossible to repair Goose Creek, owing to the fact that the Marion Manufacturing shop now stands over it.

PAID PART OF REWARD

For His Own Return to the Penitentiary.

BETRAYED PRISON PLOT

Would not Take Human Life to Gain Liberty.

Fondness for Horses Got Marvin Kuhns Into Trouble--Story Made Known for First Time.

"Marvin Kuhns was the only man who ever paid part of the reward for his own return to the Ohio penitentiary."

So said a man who has studied criminals and criminology for years yesterday. "It happened this way: Kuhns had escaped from the institution and had gone to Indiana, near where he got into trouble several times."

"It was his fondness for horses that got him into the trouble where the reward story comes in. He had been hidden in Indiana for some time after his escape from prison, and might have remained there indefinitely had he not slipped up on a pair of dun horses. This was the finest team in the county where Marvin was hiding, and he coveted them. He also covered a certain buffalo skin overcoat belonging in that vicinity. The coat and horses disappeared, and at the same time Marvin left. The combination of duns and the fur coat made a trail broad enough for a blind man to follow, and the Farmers' Protective association was soon after him."

"Kuhns was driving toward St. Louis on his way to South America and was taking his time to it. The farmers' association had offered a reward of $150 for the capture of the horse thief, and then thinking they could save money, concluded to catch Marvin themselves. In the meantime some one else found where he was sleeping, and slipping in on the desperado shot him twice and held him up. When the farmers who had offered the $150 came up they were just $15 shy of the reward money, and Marvin paid this in so as to make the full amount. Just why he did this is not known, but he was a peculiar fellow and no one knew just what he would do next. So you see, he paid part of the reward that sent him back to the prison."

Another thing that is not generally known is that Kuhns was the man who tipped off a plot to blow up the pen walls. He was asked to go in with the conspirators, but said 'No.' 'I won't kill a hundred men in order to gain my freedom.' Then he told the authorities about the plot and it was nipped in the bud."

MOVING PICTURES

Lyman H. Howe's Liferoma at the Grand Tonight.

Clever, quick, true sound accentuates every action in every picture in Lyman H. Howe's Liferoma to be seen at the Grand Opera House this evening. A company of imitators produce every vocal, musical or mechanical sound known to the human ear. In this detail as in many others, Mr. Howe is not only the pioneer, but without a peer. The exhibition is therefore not only a perfect reproduction of sight and life motion, but no less a perfect sound reproduction. These means make every scene an actuality--"A living, talking reality." So many sounds are made in so many different ways by things minute and inanimate that to reproduce them seems a very simple matter. But it seems simple only because they are so familiar. To reproduce many of them requires not only skill but tireless ingenuity. When an imitator has mastered them, still more is produced of him. He must rehearse them patiently for weeks so as to produce them in instant unison with the action in the picture. Just as it takes many months of rehearsal in every quarter of the globe to collect as notable a program as Mr. Howe will present on this occasion, so, too, many weeks of rehearsal are required to develop all its possibilities of realism. As no part of the program will be repeated in his succeeding visits, none should hesitate in securing seats early for this engagement.
